

TABOO OPINIONS #105

By Richard E. Geis

rerwingeis@q.com

Copyright 2008 by Richard E. Geis

Adults Only

Quoting in whole or in part is encouraged, with a credit line, please.

4-23-08 HITTING THE 'RACIST' WALL

I thought, months ago, when Barack Obama first emerged as a leading candidate for president, that the American white people would never elect a black man named Barack Hussein Obama. Because of the 'racism' in their genes.

I thought Barack Obama (never mind Hussein) would be too alien, too unAmerican, for the voters to swallow. We like good old Anglo-Saxon names like Bush, Clinton. Carter, Kennedy, Nixon, Ford, Reagan, Johnson ... Eisenhower and perhaps Roosevelt were white man exceptions.

I say we have 'racism' in our genes because it is a manifestation of our basic distrust and suspicion of Others (foreigners from our Family, Tribe, Clan, Nation). It is a survival instinct.

Liberals and socialists (who believe mankind is perfectible and subject to permanent change by way of education, indoctrination and law) always run head-first into biology in these matters, and never learn. They simply cannot endure the reality of mankind-as-we-are.

They hit that wall in the Pennsylvania democratic primary last night, and if they manage to get Obama nominated as the Democratic candidate for president, they will lose the election to good old Anglo-Saxon John McCain and the 'racism' described above.

Right now the Demo delegates are beginning to face the writing on the wall: LIBERAL IDEALISM DIES UNDER THE BOOT OF CONSERVATIVE REALISM.

Obama is now becoming 'the black candidate' as black voters blatantly flock to him. This polarization gives whites permission to vote their race, too.

As a side bar: isn't it odd that Obama, half white, is still considered black, as a carryover from the days when one drop of 'black blood' was enough to taint a man as black. Now, if white blood is so superior, wouldn't you think, ideally, that one drop of 'white blood' would make a man officially white?

GOING GREEN --- TO THE LOGICAL END

We are being besieged by do-gooder liberals to avoid use of oil products, plastics, etc. in order to save the planet and stave off climactic disaster. The ice is melting! The ice is melting!

My thought is that since each human --- especially in the 'civilized' world --- uses up in a lifetime so many tons of this and that, pollutes at an ungodly rate, and uses umpty-ump thousands of gallons off precious water ... the best possible effort to save the planet would be to prevent the conception of as many new humans as possible. Go to the prime problem! Overpopulation! Stop pollution at its source!

To that end, I advocate the use of oral sex (and masturbation) as a way to keep the population down. Yes, yes, Go Down to Keep the Population Down!

SUCK! DON'T FUCK!

I know, I know, that advocacy flies head-first into the genetic, instinctual imperative to have babies. But as a convinced satirist it's my duty to promote Outside Orgasms.

Go girls, frustrate your womb! Waste your eggs! A cock in hand is worth two in the bush!

END TABOO OPINIONS #105