2-12-05 MY CURRENT OBSESSION CONTINUED...

...is the Iraqi election. Today I read in The Oregonian in an obvious cherry-picking news story (they pick only the good parts for their readers to see) that in some areas and polling places in Iraq, 70-80-90% voter turnout occurred.

But still no total vote count. Just a few more days, they say...

The story, unaccredited, is I presume a compilation from various longer stories from the various press services. Anyway, The Oregonian editing crew is responsible.

2-13-05 AP now reports from Baghdad that the election commission in Iraq reports the Jan. 30 election vote total is 8.5 million, exactly as predicted on the day of the election. And it comes to 58% of the electorate, as needed to make the election legitimate.

Wonderful. Bush has avoided a lot of egg on his face.

But let us not forget that a week ago the election commission reported that the total was 3.1 million votes from 13 of 18 provinces. Wow. Those remaining unnamed five provinces were real winners, weren't they?

I was suspicious from the beginning about the truthfulness of the eventual vote total. They obviously did a lot of 'refiguring' in the past few days to get to the numbers they needed.

The election has actually been de-legitimized, and the 'insurgency' will go on.

Now to watch the various factions of the 'winning' Shiites fight for power. And I expect the struggle to reach civil war proportions.

THE NEW HIV STRAIN...

...which supposedly resists all three countering drugs in use, and which brings on AIDS in a matter of months (instead of approx. 8 years), is now causing gay men and others to again think twice about fucking somebody in the ass or getting fucked in the ass without the 'protection' of a condom. [Yes, I know HIV can be transmitted via vaginal intercourse, especially in black Africa.]

HIV breaks down the body's immune system, which allows a lot of latent deadly diseases in our bodies to come alive and kill us.

I suspect a lot of apparent AIDS deaths are immune system failures caused by other-than-HIV stresses. Alcoholism, drug addiction and obesity, for instance, are major pre-old-age killers.

Matter-of-fact, I think the programmed 'old age' weakening of body functions is the same as HIV's program in the younger body. Yes indeed, old age-caused weak hearts, pneumonia, cancers, etc. are really natural AIDS. All according to God's Plan.

Often quit literally, we pick our poison...at some level of our subconscious. Thus some very unhappy youths might "decide" at the deepest level of their characters, because they are too infantile and selfish, never to marry and be a parent...to avoid adulthood entirely...even to be a dependant infant forever. And to keep to that life track they will adopt the tactic of being unattractive to others in various ways. Being a 'loser' is better than the slavery of adult responsibilities.

Hmm. How did I get here from HIV-AIDS?
