11-14-05 HEY, REMEMBER----

Before the 1st Iraq war, President Bush #1 (after Saddam invaded Kuwait) declared it necessary to protect Saudi Arabia from invasion by Iraq and proclaimed Operation Desert Shield and set about moving an army and air force and a navy and three mountains of supplies to Saudi Arabia and the Gulf States.

THEN, when he had built up that huge force under the pretext of defending Saudi Arabia and the Gulf States, he rather abruptly found it necessary to invade Iraq and 'free' Kuwait. Operation Desert Shield became Operation Desert Storm.

NOW, do you remember about a year ago when secret memos surfaced in England, written by very highly placed British officials, dated about a year before President Bush #2 was 'forced' by intelligence reports of Saddam's weapons of mass destruction and etc., to invade Iraq that stated the invasion of Iraq was decided at least a year before the public invasion decision.

So two years ago Bush publicly decided to invade Iraq a year after deciding privately (with Tony Blair) to do the invasion.

But they and he knew the public 'had to be prepared' (propagandized) for the coming war/invasion, and he/they knew it would take a year to position an army, an air force and a navy and four mountains of supplies to make the invasion happen.

So NOW we hear this uproar about how Bush #2 'lied us into war' and not a sound about those British memos or the year of all-out preparations required to make the invasion possible.

MY WARNING is that when you see news reports of a huge build-up of arms and men and equipment in a foreign region, and simultaneously an unending drumbeat about the new enemy and its vile, evil leader who wants to kill us all...

You can figure a war is coming! ... as soon as everything and everyone is in place.

And you might be able to avoid bad consequences to you and yours, and you might be able to make some big money in the markets.

CURRENTLY Iran is emerging as the big potential enemy with a new, elected, big-mouth, stupid president who has threatened sacred I*S*R*A*E*L. So watch for a Big Build-Up.

The only trouble is (for us) is that we're losing the war in Iraq and probably Afghanistan, and cannot afford another gigantic war effort. [Though we might 'look the other way' if Israel nuked as much as possible of Iran before 'world outrage' erupted and we had to publicly stop them.]

But then there's the missile ability of Iran to stop oil production by Saudi Arabia, the Gulf States, Iraq, and perhaps southern Russia in its tracks, which would produce an instant depression and perhaps a revolution here, there and everywhere.

Life is sure interesting and complicated, ain't it?
