RAV-Ware Revision 1.0 Drag and Drop issue

Description

There is an issue with dragging and dropping from the Device Toolbox to the Flow Window in RAV-Ware version 1.0 when a computer's regional setting is set up with certain countries. This is caused by the default settings of some International Windows operating systems. This document explains how to easily correct this problem.

When you attempt to drag any item from the Device Toolbox to Line Input, Line Output, Playback or Record in the Flow Window, RAV-Ware indicates that this is not possible by displaying a Null symbol  $\emptyset$  at the point where you are trying to drop it (see Figure 1).

→ Figure 1

THE NULL SYMBOL IN FIGURE 1 IS LARGER THAN NORMAL FOR VIEWING PURPOSES.

Work Around

In order for RAV-Ware to allow you to drag and drop from the Device Toolbox to the Flow Window, you must make some changes in your computer's Regional and Language Options.

Note

The configuration shown is in Windows XP. However, all Windows Operating Systems are similar.

1. Click Start and point to Settings.
2. Click on Control Panel.
3. Double-click the Regional and Language Options icon in the Control Panel (see Figure 2).

→ Figure 2

4. In the Regional and Language Options window, click the Customize button (see figure 3).

→ Figure 3

5. In the Customize Regional Options window, change the Decimal Symbol from a “,” (comma) to a “.”(period) (see figure 4).

→ Figure 4

6. Click OK on both windows.
7. RAV-Ware now allows you to drag and drop from the Device Toolbox to Line In, Line Out, Playback and Record.

Note

There is a possibility that applications using regional settings might be affected by this change. If this is the case, you need only change the decimal symbol long enough to configure the RAV, then you can change it back to a comma.
