

The Japan Hierarchy v. 1.6
 compiled by Paul Starr www.midaregami.net

Do you have a suggestion for the next version? Email Paul: pts@midaregami.net

Japanese people

= consider themselves less pathetic than = although it is irrelevant to anybody else, consider themselves less pathetic than Clouds and unfilled arrows indicate relationships that are only meaningful within that particular sub-hierarchy, so while someone who studies Japanese because they practice Aikido may feel superior to a huge Karate Kid fan, the rest of us don't make the distinction.

